Brevity is said to be the soul of wit but there are things brief and dull as for instance the attacks on the President speech.

GEN. GRANT is a man of deeds and Jeff Davis a man of words. Papers that apologize for the latter, of course ridicule the former, but this don't worry the President.

Shotwell Again.

A few days ago, in a notice of the above individual, we propounded the following, "we would ask the News to please tell us President Grant's proposition to Shotwell that he refused. "To this the News replies on the 17th as fol-

Soon after Shotwell's imprisonment, he was approached by Government officials, who promised him if he would make a confession of the Ku Klux opnames of all the parties who took part in them or belonged to the Klan, that he would be pardoned by the President. He declined in the most emphatic manner, to make any revelations that would criminate any one but himself. During his confinement at Albany, he assures us he was approached not less than six times by persons in authority offering to procure his release upon the above or similar terms, and he invariably de-

According to this statement he was approached by certain officials who wanted him to turn States evidence .the News intimated that the President made this offer, and then it goes lame. On the 18th (yesterday) the News comes down another peg and says that there appeared in the Hillsboro' Recorder in its columns of State items the following: * * * It is said that R. A Shotwell refuses the offer of pardon made him because the terms coupled with the offer compromised his honor as a citizen. All honor to the man who is willing to suffer than to bear disgrace.' And the News then says:

"Taking this statement as a text, we wrote the editorial which appeared in the Raleigh News of September 11th .-This was the first information we had received that Shotwell had refused the last pardon which had been offered him.' On this information then, the News gave us its diatribe over Shotwell and says. "He refuses to accept the pardon which has been offered him by President Grant, because it is coupled with conditions which he regards as reflecting on his honor as a gentleman. "All this time, be it remembered, Shotwell had been pardoned and was free to go where he chose. No conditions were imposed upon him, and the petitions of his friends had been kindly heard by the President and a pardon granted. It will be seen therefore, that we were in the right when we denied that the President had imposed "conditions" upon this noble scion of royal blood, and that the News was begging the [Raleigh News, same article] Shotwell will not accept Grant's pardon, because its terms are such, he says, as would compromise his honor as a man and his integrity as a citizen.

We presume Grant wants to make a Radical of him: The brave Shotwell will not kiss the rod of persecution nor "bend the supple hinges of the knee that thrift may follow fawning." This is a lesson of heroism to some of the apostates who have bartered their consciences and principles for place and

[Wilmington Journal]

* * The manner and the instruments of the trial and conviction of Capt Shotwell, from Judge Bond, on the Bench, to the meanest perjured witness on the stand, are too fresh in the memories of our people to require any comment from us this morning. While Bond has embalmed himself in everlasting infamy, Shotwell comes back to his home and is welcomed by good men as one should be welcomed who has suffered undeserved persecution for political opinion's sake and the verdict is a just

[Southern Home,]

It is seldom in these degenerate times that we find a man who has borne himself so nobly in the hour of trial.-Every effort was made in vain to seduce him from his integrity and induce him to compromise his own honor or to betray his associates. All honor to the man who can't be bought.

Capt. Shotwell gave a very touching account of the condition of Mr. Samuel Brown, of York, S. [Newton Vindicator.] We are rejoiced to learn from the Raleigh News, that Capt. R. A. Shotwell, has been unconditionally released from the Albany penitentiary, and was in Raleigh on Friday last. A victim of Radical persecution, he has a far nobler record than the cringing loyalists who hunted him down until they succeeded in getting him out of their way.

Now these papers are praising a man who was a member the kuklux in this State. They will not deny it, and the Raleigh News, one of the most prominent democratic papers in this State admits it. Convicted by a jury of his countrymen, incarcerated as a penalty for his crimes, pardoned as an act of clemency by the President, he returns from a felons cell to be lauded by the democratic press, while the President is abused and vilified for not pardoning

While several people were striving to bring a fainting woman to consciousness, on the Harlem road Friday, a miserable peddler forced himself into the crowd with the information that they were "five for a quarter," and "perfectly rise." perfectly ripe."

The city people are going back home this month. You can see them loading up at the farm houses and making for the cars. The head of the family wears a long linen duster, and a tall white hat with a broad black band about it.—
He is mainly busy in thrusting children in the wagon, and running back to the house after things his wife has forgotten. She, poor woman, has taken a whole seat to herself, and between expectations of the coming season and dread of something being spilled on her clothes, is in about as an ecstatic state as can be imagined. And the little olives are enjoying themselves, too, rasping each other's shins and threatening to fall out and be crushed to death. But they go off with the floating of handkerchiefs and hearty good bys of the farmer's family, who immediately retire to the house to give thanks. And when the farmer's son returns from the depot, he takes hold of the grindstone, and the conversation that ensues between him and his sire, while the various edged implements are being put in shape call for renewed efforts on the part of the home missions.

A NIMROD ARREST .- Some five or six months ago one Sam Williams was creating quite a disturbance near his home and officer Brown of the police force was called upon to arrest him. Williams ran to his house, got his gun and came out in the street, "drew a bead" on Brown and let go his old blunderbuss. Brown jumped behind a tree, thereby avoiding being shot .-Williams then started on a brisk run for his house and warned the officer not to follow him. Williams left the city the next day and since that time nothing could be heard of him until this morning, when Williams and Officer Brown met. The officer seemed delighted to see him, and saluted him with "consider yourself under arrest." Williams was carried before the Mayor who bound him over in the sum of $200.

BRIDAL TOUR.-Yesterday afternoon a colored man applied to a person who usually hires his horse and rockaway out, to procure the turnout to go on the Sound where he was to be married. The expectant bridegroom had hardly gotton fairly under headway when the equine showed sign of incapability of drawing his load, and as he leasurely hagged along the road, the minutes verged into hours and the hours seemingly into days. Arriving at the home of his inamorata they were soon made one. This morning the happy couple started back to town and when about half way between the Sound and the City, the horse gave out. He was taken out of the rockaway and led to town and when nearly to the stables of his owner he fell prostrate on the ground, and at last accounts he was fast relinquishing all claim upon the

THE JAIL, -We visited the Jail this morning with Deputy Sheriff A. H. Morris, who went to make a more careful search among the cells for contraband articles. A careful inspection revealed a ball of string made of twisted strips of bed ticking, large enough to reach the ground, and evidently intended to draw up small articles from the outside. Everything else appeared to be in order. The rope found last night is about seventy-five feet long and was cut from a seine, pieces of the twine still adhere to it. With this rope and the two balls of cloth string, a rope ladder could have been constructed of sufficient strength to bear the weight of a man. The window weight, weighs seven and a half pounds. Nearly every prisoner in the jail protests his innocence and if their word is to be taken, the next session of court will be an unjust one, should any convictions occur. Messrs. Morris and Nash are doing all in their power to ferret out the origin and extent of the plot and we hope they name of Jenkins, was fined $10 and

Sam Williams, charged with resisting a police officer. An examination was waived and the offender bound over in the sum of $200 for his appearance at the Superior Court. THE General Illustrated World Exhibition Journal, Vienna, August 7th, 1873, says: "If we commence to observe the succession of machinery from the west, our eye will meet at first the exhibition of Scales of the firm of Fairbanks & Co., who present to us a large assortment of patterns, from the small letter scale to the largest platform scale with a capacity for weighing 30,000 kilos, and need for weighing loaded railroad cars. The scales are principally based on the decimal system, though arranged for all systems of weights of the world, so that by the side of the scale for Portugal we find scales for Russia and Turkey-a proof that Fairbanks scales enjoy great favor in the Old World as well as in America."

PUBLIC MEETING.—In response to the Mayor's call, a meeting of the citizens was held in the City Court room last evening. Hon. A. M. Waddell explained the object of the meeting in his own terse way:

Col. J. W. Atkinson, Hon. A. M. Waddell, Capt. D. R. Murchison and Maj. J. A. Englehard were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting, who reported a series of sympathetic resolutions which were unanimously adopted. The following committee was appointed by the Mayor to secure sub scriptions: Hon. A. M. Waddell, Maj. J. A. Englehard, Capt. I. B. Grainger, Rev. A. A. Watson, D. D., and Col. J

W. Atkinson. There was about $200 raised last night and much more is expected to be collected to-day. Alderman S. H. Fishblate tendered the services of several ladies and gentlemen of this city who are prepared to give a concert for the benefit of the Shreveport sufferers.

AMUSEMENT ENTERPRISE.—The Creat Eastern Menagerie and Circus manifests a prodigal liberality which plainly evidences the fact that no matter how stupendous its receipts here for the one day it tarries, Wednesday, October 15th, it cannot take much money out of town. Its general agent, Major W. W. Durand, yesterday made a contract with the mechanics for the erection of nine full hundred feet in length of bill or bulletin boards. These boards are twelve and fifteen feet high, the nity as they certainly deserve for their lumber aggregating 18,500 feet, and the laudable and praiseworthy efforts to material costing over $400. They are beautify our city as well as to found an to be erected in different localities—one corner of Dock and Second, another on corner Market and Second, three on Front street, a sixth in the post office alley, and others elsewhere throughout the city, and is to-day actively engaged with his corps of hands in the erection of the boards. To-morrow, Mr. H. I. Leach and of the Great Eastern, with their array of bill posters will arrive and decorate these structures with many colored papers representing equestrian, pastoral and startling scenes in the arena and the beauties of the natural kingdom. The $225 license tax which the Great Eastern has to pay to exhibit here one day does not seem to awe its agents usual price of admission only.

From the above it will be easy to see something near what it costs to exhibit big show in this city for one day only when the salaries of the people, the transportation for three special railond trains, the hotel bills for 300 people and forage for as many horses—the printing, newpaper advertise ments de B taken fully into consider-

OUR NEW BUILDINGS.

Bank of New Hanover.

We were kindly shown through this building on yesterday by Mr. John V. Wright, the foreman, who has entire charge of the work during the temporary absence of the contractor, Mr. Joseph McIllvaine, who is at present North on business connected with the completion of the building, and from him we glean the following facts and figures:

This magnificent yet unfinished edifice was begun about the first of Aprilthat is the excavation of the cellar-but the building proper, not until the first of May. It is rapidly approaching completion though it will not be finished until the first of November. The specifications were drawn up by Mr. Samuel Sloan, an experienced architect in Philadelphia, and the contract for building was given to Mr. Joseph Me-Illwaine, who is ably seconed by Mr. J. V. Wright, both Philadelphians and workmen of the first rank. The build ing is four stories with a cellar be neath; it fronts sixty-six feet on Front street and thirty-eight feet on Princess street, and is sixty feet high; it is constructed of brick and its massive iron facade is beautifully stuccoed and ornamented in modern style. The roof is style mansard and covered with slate of the finest quality. The building has two spacious rooms on the first floor, six rooms each on the second and third floors, and the fourth floor is converted into one large hall, measuring fortynine by twenty-nine feet, and well adapted for the purpose of a public hall. Besides the rooms enumerated there are several smaller apartments situated on each floor. On the third floor we noticed a large tank with a capacity of some two hundred gallons, which can be readily filled by means of pipes extending from the cistern be- Stocks fell ten per cent. and are still low the building. The material used sinking. in the construction was brought from Additional failures in New York Philadelphia with the exception of Thos. Reed & Co., W. H. In constructing this building the greatest attention has been paid to the wants of the occupants and all necessary conveniences used in modern buildings are to be found. The cost seem to be no object, but on the contrary, convenient and needful apartments the sole aim. Mr. McIllvane, we understand, contracted to erect the building for the sum of $38,000, and it s calculated that it will cost $2,000 in addition to this in fitting it up properly, thus making a total cost of about $40,-000 which speaks volumes in favor of Wilmington and her enterpising busi-

To be brief, when this building shall have reached completion and have received its finishing touches it will present a magnificent appearance standing as it does in such a central location, with several fine buildings just completed and others being built in close proximity. Situated on a high elevation, looming up toward the heavens, it will compete with the finest structures of the day any where in the South. To say that it s an ornament to Wilmington would be inadequate praise. It cannot be excelled by any building in the State .-Success say we to the institution; may it rapidly increase in prosperity and may its public spirited and enterprising managers receive such patronage at the hands of our entire commuinstitution firm as the everlasting hills.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.—Rev. John S. Long, General Deputy of the State Grange, will finish his appointments about the fourth of October. If R. L. Harriss, Esq., is the contractor any of our people desire to form more granges in this county, they should notify G. Z. French, Esq., of the Executive Committe, in this city, that Mr. Long may be notified to come here. It Charles Sivalls, the contracting agents requires nine men and four women to organize a Grange.

A Raleigh News correspondent writing from Castalia, Nash county, under date of the 16th, furnishes the following items: Four mineral springs have recently been discovered on the farm of Mr. James B. H. Boddie, in Nash county. The principal mineral of one is iron, of who still determine to perform at the another magnesia, and of the other two the minerals are unknown. Mr. Boddie anticipates having the water analysed soon. The springs are situated in a healthy vicinity, about three miles from the flourishing little town of Castalia; on the road leading from this place to are looking finely, though farmers com-plain greatly of the damage done them by the recent rains.
